Michel Butor: La modification (UK: Second Thoughts, US: Change of Heart) As with his previous novels, the structure of this novel is very precise. It is divided into three sections, each with three chapters. The setting of the novel is clearly delimited as in the earlier novels. In this case, it is a train journey from Paris to Rome and starts with the hero, Léon Delmont, getting on the train in Paris and ends with him leaving it in Rome.

Le Nouvelliste - Relire « La modification » de Michel Butor

La Modification, publié en 1957, est sans nul doute le roman le plus connu de Michel Butor. Il est souvent rattaché au mouvement du Nouveau Roman pour son éloignement des formes classiques du roman afin de représenter le monde contemporain sous une nouvelle perspective , à l'instar de Robbe-Grillet ou de Nathalie Sarraute, qui cherchent ainsi à parler du désarroi d'un monde post-Seconde Guerre mondiale .

With his third novel, La Modification (1957; Second Thoughts, or A Change of Heart), Butor perfected his experimental technique and was considered to have arrived at his full powers. The work won the Prix Renaudot. Butor, who regarded the novel as a blend of philosophy and poetry, owed much in his fiction to the influence of James Joyce. A feature common to all his novels is a rigid structure.
