In music, an accidental is a note of a pitch that is not a member of the scale or mode indicated by the most recently applied key signature. In musical notation, the sharp, flat, and natural symbols, among others, mark such notes—and those symbols are also called accidentals. In the measure where it appears, an accidental sign raises or lowers the immediately following note from its normal pitch, overriding the key signature. A note is usually raised or lowered by a semitone, and there are ...

People and most other vertebrates actually have two immune systems. The first is the innate system, which is made up of cells and molecules that recognize and bind to characteristic features of microbes, such as standard bacterial cell wall components. The innate immune system gives a rapid response to most microbial invasions.
